What and Who are we looking for?

We don't need an expert but we want someone who has the power to adapt to changing times and environments because we are that dynamic. At TaskUs, we all work hard but we don't forget to have fun.

If you really think you are tech savvy and have strong comprehension and excellent spoken and written communications skills in English and Traditional/Simplified Chinese, and you are interested in developing a career (not just a job!), then you sound like just the sort of go-getter that we love meeting. We want to see your resume. But more than that, we want to get to know you.

Aside from an above average industry standard compensation package, we also offer ridiculously awesome incentives for top individual and team performers and employee engagement activities. If this cool company culture is appealing to you, let's explore where your passions intersect with our mission.
